COURSE DESCRIPTION

In this course, students will develop the cultural and intercultural competence necessary for teaching French as a foreign language. The theoretical framework favours the emergence of each person's own representations (stereotypes, plural belonging, identities, etc.). The course activities will help students to understand and to master the dynamics of the intercultural approach in the context of language teaching and learning. The students will test different (inter)cultural activities by creating, practising and analysing them and will work on implementing pedagogical sequences related to cultural competence.
